

13 Ways to Feast on Thanksgiving Day in Miami, 2022 Edition

Leave it to the professionals this year

Thanksgiving can be quite the production for those who don't love to cook. But luckily for us in Miami, which stands on the ancestral Indigenous land of Seminole, Taino, and Tequesta tribes, there are several stand-out dining options. So, if spending an entire day (or two) cooking isn't in the books, check out this list of South Florida's 13 best Thanksgiving deals listed in geographical order from north to south.

The Key Club

The Key Club inside Cocowalk in Coconut Grove features a four-course dinner beginning with a butternut squash soup and then followed by tortellini with black truffle butter. The main event will be a whole roasted turkey with various sides, including green beans, mac and cheese, sourdough stuffing, and more. For dessert, enjoy pumpkin and chocolate pecan pie.

Price: $72 per person.
