

PLANTA Queen Welcomes A Plant-Based Burger Concept To Its Menu

PLANTA, renowned for its innovative plant-based cuisine, is excited to announce the addition of the Planta Burger to its menu lineup. Originating as a singular offering at PLANTA Yorkville in Toronto, the Planta Burger has swiftly garnered popularity, prompting its expansion across Florida and New York City with four ghost kitchens preparing the high concept burger.

Exclusively available for pickup and delivery, the Planta Burger concept offers a variety of plant-based burgers, sides, treats and shakes.

Signature creations include the Classic Burger, made from 100% plant-based whole ingredients, a house patty, cheddar, mushroom bacon, lettuce, tomato, onion, pickles, secret sauce, and the Kentucky Burger, featuring chick'n fried mushrooms, buffalo sauce, lettuce, pickles, ranch and pickled peppers.

"We're thrilled to welcome the PLANTA Burger concept to our CocoWalk location," said Patrick Lingle, General Manager, PLANTA Queen. "After witnessing the popularity of the plant-based burger offerings in other locations, we knew it was time to bring this concept to the Grove. We aim to provide tasty and easy-to-find options that inspire people to explore the advantages of plant-based dining."

At the heart of PLANTA Queen's mission lies a dedication to promoting sustainable eating habits and fostering a deeper connection with the food we consume. By offering tasteful, plant-based alternatives, PLANTA Queen seeks to inspire individuals to make mindful choices that benefit both their health and the planet.

To celebrate the launch, PLANTA Queen is offering special combo deals, including Burger & Fries for $15 and Burger & Fries & Shake for $22.
